QSG Adds A New Product Consultant To Its Team To Continue Product Expansion

NAPERVILLE, IL. (July 20, 2005) – Stuart Tolander has joined the Quantitative Services Group, LLC (QSG) as a Product Consultant. Stuart brings 18 years of institutional trading experience to the QSG team. Most recently, Stuart was VP of Sales at Harborside. When asked about joining the QSG team, Stuart said, "I'm really looking forward to working at QSG because of their commitment to providing real solutions for institutional traders. QSG's products are 'first in class' and their employees have excellent reputations in the marketplace. Tim and John's commitment to delivering the best trading analytics available is very apparent, their emphasis on client service is a welcome departure from the direction many firms are heading in."

"We are excited about having a person of Stuart's caliber join our firm," said John Wightkin, QSG's Managing Partner. "QSG will benefit from his experience and industry knowledge in its continued sales growth and new product development. Stuart's institutional trading experience will be especially beneficial in solidifying QSG's T-Cost Pro service as the industry's premier transaction cost measurement solution."

"Stuart's understanding of the challenges of institutional traders and his experience with the latest trading technologies makes him a perfect fit for our firm", said Tim Sargent, QSG's President. "The timing of Stuart's addition couldn't be better. We'll soon introduce our advanced pre-trade analytics platform and our first set of International products. Stuart's experience will help clients get the most out of our expanding set of services.

QSG's T-Cost Pro is recognized as the only analytics package fully capable of analyzing the increasing number of algorithmic trading techniques. The service's detailed analysis of time-stamped executions makes it the perfect tool to spot front running and assure 'best execution'.
